REQUIREMENTS FOR A QUALIFYING CHILD FOR EITC

A child must meet certain requirements to be a qualifying child for the EITC. The following chart outlines the three requirements that must be met: relationship, age, and residency.

TIE-BREAKER RULES

Sometimes a child meets the rules to be a qualifying child of more than one person. If the child is the qualifying child of more than one person, only one person can claim the child as a qualifying child for all of the following tax benefits:

- The EITC
- The exemption for the child
- The child tax credit
- Head of household filing status
- The credit for child and dependent care expenses
- The exclusion for dependent care benefits

The other person(s) cannot take any of the six tax benefits listed above unless he or she has a different qualifying child. If they cannot agree who will claim the child as a qualifying child, and more than one person actually claims tax benefits using the same child, the tie-breaker rule (explained in the next paragraph) applies. If the other person is a spouse and they file a joint return, this rule does not apply.

Under the tie-breaker rule, the child is treated as a qualifying child only by:

1. The parents, if they file a joint return,
2. The parent, if only one of the persons is the child's parent,
3. The parent with whom the child lived the longest during the tax year, if two of the persons are the child's parent and they do not file a joint return together,
4. The parent with the highest AGI if the child lived with each parent for the same amount of time during the tax year, and they do not file a joint return together, or
5. The person with the highest AGI, if none of the persons is the child's parent.
